Training Announcement

Investigating & Prosecuting Cold Case Homicides

Since the 1970's, Michigan has accrued over 11,000 unsolved cold case homicides. The Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan (PAAM) in conjunction with the Michigan State Police is providing a day-long training seminar to combat this significant challenge. This one-day training course is designed to teach both police officers and prosecutors the skills needed to successfully handle these difficult and important cases. Taught by investigators and prosecutors with vast experience in handling cold case homicides, attendees will learn about investigation strategies, theories and techniques; organizational principles; and the use of investigative subpoenas. Real case examples will also be explored.
